Have you ever heard the story of Issac Newton and his little dog, Diamond ?

The incident happened when Newton was fifty years old. He had worked hard for twenty years, studying the theory of light. One day he went out of his chamber, leaving his little dog asleep before the fire. On the table lay a heap of manuscript papers containing all the discoveries which Newton had made during those twenty years. When his master was gone, up rose little Diamond, jumped upon the table and overturned the lighted candle. The papers immediately caught fire.

Just as the destruction was completed, Newton opened the chamber door and noticed that the labours of twenty years were reduced to a heap of ashes. There stood little Diamond, the author of all the mischief. Almost any other man would have sentenced the dog to immediate death. But Newton patted him on the head with his usual kindness, although his heart was full of grief.

“O Diamond, Diamond !” he exclaimed. “You little know the mischief you have done !”

This incident affected his health and spirits for some time afterwards, but from his conduct towards the little dog, you may judge the sweetness for his temper.
